

Speaker's Profile

Edward J. DeMarco

USA

Current:

- President of the Housing Policy Council of the Financial Services Roundtable in Washington D.C.
- Fellow in the National Academy of Public Administration, Washington D.C.
- Member, Comptroller General's Advisory Board, U.S. Government Accountability Office

Past:

- Senior Fellow in Residence at the Milken Institute's Center for Financial Markets in Washington D.C., USA
- Acting Director, Federal Housing Finance Agency, where he was the Conservator of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac and the regulator of those companies and the Federal Home Loan Bank System
- Deputy Director and Chief Operating Office of the Federal Housing Finance Agency and its predecessor, the Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight.
- Assistant Deputy Commissioner for Policy, Social Security Administration
- Director, Office of Financial Institutions Policy and other positions, U.S. Department of the Treasury
- Economist, U. S. General Accounting Office

Publications:

- "Homeownership, Wealth Creation, and Financial Stability," Milken Institute Review, October 2016
- "Toward a New Secondary Mortgage Market," Milken Institute, September 2016 (with Michael Bright)
- "Why Housing Reform Still Matters," Milken Institute, June 2016 (with Michael Bright)
- Numerous speeches, Congressional testimony, articles, and other presentations on housing finance, including secondary mortgage market reform, the role of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, and pathways from the financial crisis to a new secondary mortgage market, most of which may be found on the Milken Institute website or the Federal Housing Finance Agency website

Education:

- Ph.D. and M.A. in economics, University of Maryland
- B.A., University of Notre Dame